GLOBAL LABOR MIGRATION

New Directions

Edited by EILEEN BORIS, HEIDI GOTTFRIED,
JULIE GREENE, and JOO-CHEONG THAM

Expanding the scope of how we study labor migrants

“The editors succeed in putting together a highly interesting collection of essays that talk to each other and open new venues, approaches, and perspectives, while finding striking similarities between the continents. But this book also shows how migrants—despite ongoing exploitation and exclusion—find their own loopholes and chase their dreams. A must-read for those interested in how the past structures current day trends, discussions, and daily practices from Beijing to Detroit.”

—LEO LUCASSEN, Director of the International Institute of Social History

Around the world, hundreds of millions of labor migrants endure exploitation, lack of basic rights, and institutionalized discrimination and marginalization. What dynamics and drivers have created a world in which such a huge—and rapidly growing—group toils as marginalized men and women, existing as a lower caste institutionally and juridically? In what ways did labor migrants shape their living and working conditions in the past, and what opportunities exist for them today?

Global Labor Migration presents new multidisciplinary, transregional perspectives on issues surrounding global labor migration. The essays go beyond disciplinary boundaries, with sociologists, ethnographers, legal scholars, and historians contributing research that extends comparison among and within world regions. Looking at migrant workers from the late nineteenth century to the present day, the contributors illustrate the need for broader perspectives that study labor migration over longer timeframes and from wider geographic areas.
